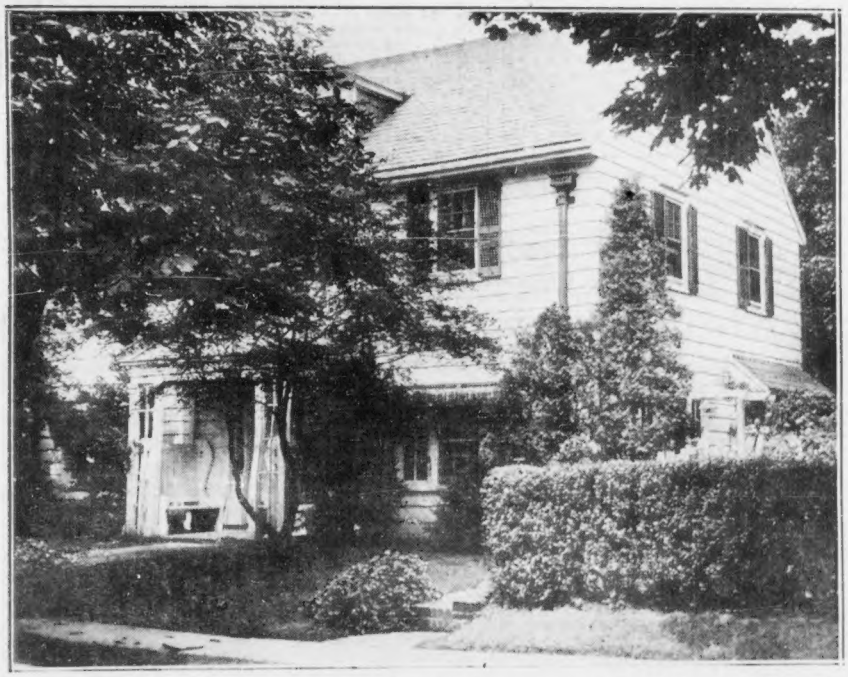
EXECUTIONER'S IDENTITY BARED



Death Dealer's Wife and Home—Mystery that surrounded the close-kept identity of the state's executioner of Somerville slayers, Wallace Green and Walter St. Sauveur, today is cleared up by the Boston Evening American. The executioner of the two is Frederick J. Carr, 57, electrical contractor, whose well-groomed home at 16 Woodside ave., Trenton, N. J., is shown above. At the right, his wife, Mrs. Frederick J. EXECUTIONER CARR'S HOME IN TRENTON, N. J.

Mr. X, Prosperous Friend of Elliott, Identified by American Staff Writer

BY AUSTEN LAKE

(Copyright 1939. All rights reserved)

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 9—Mysterious Mr. X, the amateur executioner who applied the fatal current to Wallace Greene and Walter St. Sauveur last week, is mysterious no longer.

He is Frederick J. Carr, prosperous Trenton, N. J., electrical contractor, father of an adult son and owner of a home in fashionable Hillcrest district. Carr threw the switch which took the lives of two felons at Charlestown prison on August 1, the first time, and presumably the last, in which he has officiated at a death watch.

He has been friend and business acquaintance, through the years, of Robert Elliott, the veteran deathsman who lies seriously ill in his Long Island home.

Not that Frederick Carr, alias Mr. X, admitted his part in the grisly business. In fact, when I called at his home and sat in his well appointed parlor, he hedged. But there was no mistake.

I had studied the man too closely at Charlestown in that fatal night last week.

The well groomed, middle aged man who came into the room at 16 Woodside ave. was the same man who stood in a blue sweat-stained shirt in the Charlestown deathhouse and chewed gum.

The same man who plunged the throttle into the black panel and brought the figures of Green and St. Sauveur straining against their lethal harness.

I said, by way of conversation:

"Did you ever see an execution, Mr. Carr?"

He replied, hesitatingly:

"Yes, years ago—12 years at least."

I said:

"Did you ever execute anybody yourself?"

RECOGNITION COMES

His face, a lean pallid mask, turned suddenly violet. He wasn't wearing his rimless glasses now, as he had at Charlestown on that horrid night. The pale eyes that had stared so calmly in the face of the two condemned wretches as they walked through the cream panelled door, were apprehensive now.

The well-to-do businessman, the quiet neighbor in the shaded social region of Trenton, realized that recognition had come.

He didn't answer. His pale, almost waxlike face, was suddenly livid. In a voice that was a high-pitched husk he said:

"Go!" pointing toward the door.

There was a touch of hysteria in the voice.

"Do me the favor to get out!"

I did.

Earlier, as I sat in his living room, he was reticent and suspicious.

He denied that he had equipped

Elliott Leaves His Home for 'Needed Rest'

NEW YORK, Aug. 9-(AP)—The wife of Robert G. Elliott, 70-year-old executioner for New York, Massachusetts and three other Eastern states, disclosed today her husband was taken in a private ambulance from their Queens home yesterday for a "much needed rest."

Mrs. Elliott said he was slowly improving.

"It was quite necessary for him to get away because he was constantly being disturbed by callers inquiring about his health," Mrs. Elliott said.

Governor Wins Battle Over Tax On Cigarettes and Hard Liquors

Governor Saltonstall won two smashing victories for his emergency tax measure in a stormy session of the House today.

Following a bitter battle over cigarette taxes, and with another forecast over lowered exemptions of income taxes, he won a vote of confidence—which indicated an overwhelming victory for the whole program—when, despite opposition, the bill was voted to a third reading.

The vote was 113 to 89 against.

Earlier a liquor tax was voted, and the bill was sent to him for signature, and he won a victory on the cigarette tax. His bill is designed to add $19,420,000 in new revenues.

Gov. Saltonstall won his first victory by 130 to 88 when the House voted not to exclude the cigarette tax from consideration.

The vote came on a resolution

BULLETIN

The House on a rollcall vote of 142 to 85 today killed a bill to broaden the income tax base as the Republican majority split wide open on the question of reducing income tax exemptions to a point where an unmarried person earning $27 a week would be taxed.

LABOR IN MARCH ON STATE HOUSE

In an unprecedented demonstration against so-called "anti-labor" policies of Governor Saltonstall and his administration, delegates to the 54th annual convention of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor staged a dramatic march on the State House today.

The convention's business session at the Hotel Bradford was suspended by unanimous vote, and the march of several score of the delegates was led by Federation Pres. Nicholas P. Morrissey and other officers.

CALLED 'ANTI LABOR'

Announced purpose of the demonstration was two-fold—first, to emphasize the convention's formal repudiation of the Saltonstall administration as hostile to labor; second, to register a public protest against a proposed legislative amendment of the Massachusetts "Baby Wagner Act."

Just before the march on the State House was organized, the convention unanimously adopted a resolution condemning Governor Saltonstall and his administration as "anti-labor."

The resolution cited alleged failure of the Governor to keep campaign promises to secure enactment of wages and hour legislation, a state fund for workmen's compensation and repeal of the teachers' oath law.

It pledged the Massachusetts Federation of Labor "to secure election in 1940 of an administration friendly to organized labor."

Only voice raised in defense of the Governor was that of Delegate William H. Thornton of Worcester.

He was booed down, to shouts of "What job did you get?" Thornton was appointed by Governor Saltonstall to the board of review of the State unemployment compensation commission.

SCORES GOVERNOR

When the anti-Saltonstall resolution was brought to the floor of the labor convention today, it was supported by Kenneth Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the federation.

He assailed the governor for "coming to the House of Labor flanked by four plainclothesmen."

"I may be comparatively young in the labor movement," Taylor told the Hotel Bradford gathering. "But many of you here have been labor men for many years.

"And I venture to say, in all your long experience, you never saw a governor before who felt he had to be protected by police when he came before a Massachusetts Federation of Labor convention.

"If you want to know how Governor Saltonstall stands on labor issues, all you have to do is look at his public record. As has already been said, from this platform, his batting record in behalf of labor is 0-0-0!"

Secretary-Treasurer Taylor's reference to Governor Saltonstall's appearance "flanked by four plain clothesmen" had reference to the governor's visit to the convention yesterday.

The chief executive took the convention platform to defend his labor policies and to reaffirm his campaign promise to give a "square deal" alike to labor and industry.

Union Chief Bars Star 'Mob Scene'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 9 (AP)—Screen, stage and radio entertainers bound here from Hollywood and New York to meet tomorrow with the American Federation of Labor's Executive Council in an attempt to iron out union difficulties, will have to forget any "lines" they may have prepared for discussion.

ANN SHERIDAN
Protests AFL Action

The Council has ruled the hearing would be held behind closed doors with nobody present but Council members and Union spokesmen. William Green, A. F. of L. president, said unions involved would be allowed to delegate only the number of spokesmen needed to explain their arguments.

"We can't have a big mob in the council chamber," Green said. "We won't allow the place to be stormed."

This actors' union squabble between Sophie Tucker and Katherine Hepburn and Helen Hayes, et al, isn't just a tiff among us girls.

It involves not only some 50,000 theatrical workers and the entire A. F. of L., but also the whole legitimate theater and even your neighborhood movie.

The highly-unionized theatrical world was split in a jurisdictional fight arising from the affiliation of the American Federation of Actors with the Stage Hands Union after the AFA was expelled from the associated actors and artists of America, parents of 11 theatrical unions. The expelled union is composed of 10,000 vaudeville, night club and circus performers.

Delegates of the Screen Actors Guild, a member of the AAAA, left Hollywood by airplane early today saying they planned a strenuous fight against what they called an attempt by the Stage Hands Union to gain control over actors. Guild, which include Edward Arnold, Binnie Barnes, Jean Muir,

JEAN MUIR

Lucille Gleason, Wyane Morris, Henry Hull, Mischa Auer and Larry Steers, will arrive in Newark late today. They will come here with a demand that the A. F. of L. Council outlaw a charter issued to the AFA by the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes.

The IATSE is affiliated with the AFL and the entertainers contend a clause in the AFL constitution forbids the IATSE from taking in a union expelled by a body connected with the AFL. The Stage Hands Union is a member of the IATSE.

Harry Richman, vice-president of the AFA, was suspended in New York yesterday by the Actors Equity Association and a hearing for him was set for August 29. Sophie Tucker, president of the AFA and already under suspension from the association, lost a Supreme Court plea for an injunction to prevent the AAAA from interfering with her union.

Experiments On Frogs Seen Surgery Aid

NORTH TRURO, Aug. 9 (AP)—Application to human surgery of principles of regeneration exhibited in certain forms of lower life was seen as a "distinct possibility" today by Dr. Oscar E. Schotte, Amherst College embryologist.

One of 60 American and European scientists attending a five-day symposium on growth and development here, Dr. Schotte said he had successfully replaced excised eye lenses, ears, and mouths of certain amphibia with tissue of entirely different organs of those same animals.

"These experiments," he declared in an interview, "illustrate my thesis that living cells have no permanent destiny, and that the tissues they form can be interchanged throughout the body to form new organs, regardless of their initial role.

"There is no reason to believe that work which already has been done with frogs and salamanders lacks potentiality with respect to the higher animals—yes, ourselves — which would mean a great deal if it could be applied to human surgery."

Dr. Schotte said that in his experiments so far he chose the vertebrae salamander and frog "because they regenerate easily."

He said he had made bones "grow" in the salamander by transplantation of frog tissue, and also had replaced the excised eye lens of a tadpole with tissue taken from a tadpole tail.

In experiment, he said, he removes a certain part of the experimental animal, waits five days, and then grafts on the new tissue.

FR. DIVINE MILK BAR AT CASTLE

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Angela C. Kaufman, piloting a reporter on a special tour of "The Castle," former estate of Richard Washburn Child, today revealed that everything is in readiness for Father Divine to take over the estate as a heaven for his Harlem angels.

John Lamb, secretary to Father Divine, said in New York yesterday that the cult leader and his staff would visit "The Castle" this week.

"This nautical bar and grille will be Father Divine's milk bar," she said. "Those lanterns are my own inventions. They are 'glo-ray' lanterns (pronounced glory lanterns), my own thought."

Mrs. Kaufman said that she had gone over the plans of "The Castle," room by room, and that Father Divine had been pleased at the prospect of a kitchen executed by Elsie Dewolf, a hall for his banquets, even larger than the one in his No. 1 kingdom in Harlem.

"He said it wouldn't be necessary to make a single change," Mrs. Kaufman said proudly. "He assured me that I couldn't have planted a better heaven for him than I did in planning an inn. He is actually gratified and, of course, so am I."

Mrs. Kaufman said the kitchen of the prospective heaven is equipped to turn out fried chicken at what, under ordinary circumstances, might be called an alarming rate.

Prince's Wave Costs $30,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (INS)—A flip of the hand as Prince Alexis Orloff waved goodbye to a group of friends, and his $30,000 diamond ring was gone.

It happened in front of the 21 Club early Sunday. After an hour's search, the prince became ill and returned to his apartment.

Today he advertised a $1000 reward for return of the ring which contained a 27-carat diamond and which is a family heirloom.

Hunt Mystery Man in Love Lane Killing

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 9—Police began an intensive search today for a mystery man with a "harsh and grating voice"—a voice which said over the telephone:

Overcome with grief, the Rev. Walter Dworecki (right) of the Polish Baptist Church, N. J., is supported by Detective Carr as he views brutally murdered body of his daughter, Wanda.

"Tell Wanda to shut up, or somebody is going to get bumped off."

The "somebody" who did get "bumped off" was Wanda, herself, 18-year-old, romance-loving daughter of Rev. Walter Dworecki, Polish Baptist Church pastor.

It was her father, near collapse from sorrow today, who told of threats against her life he himself received from an unknown person by phone.

GANG LINK SEEN

The father linked the threats to a "gang" that once abducted his daughter and finally released her after a savage beating.

This time, however, Wanda wasn't beaten—she was murdered!

Choked to death by a brutal slayer whose gorilla grip crushed the bones of her neck, the pretty, auburn-haired victim was apparently hurled from an automobile.

Her body was found lying face down in a clump of shrubbery near a so-called Lovers' Lane adjacent to th Camden high school grounds.

CORSAGE OF ROSES

The finery auburn-haired Wanda loved to wear was torn and dishevelled. But still pinned to her blouse was a corsage of white and red roses.

The girl had worn no flowers when she had left her home "to buy a pair of stockings and get some ice cream at the drug store."

So detectives of the homicide bureau were racking puzzled brains today in an effort to tie up the

Goodwin Fights 'Fake' Claims

Avowing he would not make the Registry of Motor Vehicles a "collection agency for phoney doctors and lawyers pressing fake auto claims," Registrar Frank A. Goodwin today appeared before the committee on judiciary to oppose a bill filed by Charles F. J. Harrington, state commissioner of insurance.

Harrington's bill would require the registry to suspend the registration and driving license of any policy holder with a mutual insurance company who fails to pay assessment levied by the company. It was aimed at 30,000 policy holders in the closed Canton and Bristol st. insurance companies where assessments were called to pay company deficits.

The committee, impressed by the registrar's testimony, reported against the bill and recommended that it be referred to the next Legislature.

PETZOLD, 4 OTHERS INDICTED IN 'RING'

Five men, one of them Paul A. Petzold, former Boston patrolman whose "robbery ring" confession touched off a far-reaching police department investigation, were indicted by the Suffolk County grand jury on robbery charges as the climax of the first part of proceedings in the unique case.

The grand jury resumed its deliberations as soon as the indictments had been returned, but was interrupted by a dramatic interlude when, with Petzold on the stand again, District Attorney William J. Foley rushed from the grand jury room and ordered a prospective witness arrested.

Running from the star chamber, Foley pointed dramatically at a man who was waiting his turn to testify and shouted to Police Lieutenant James V. Crowley:

"Arrest that man on suspicion of armed robbery."

Crowley and Inspector Thomas Conaty took the man into custody and rushed him to police headquarters.

The grand jury went on with the second part of the Petzold case after voting the indictments against the five men, Petzold, three state's prison convicts and an inmate of the house of correction.

The men, in addition to Petzold, are William Gillar of Chelsea, Frank Williams of Revere, Nicholas Geraicery of Revere and Albert Abrams of Chelsea. The four are convicts, three in State Prison and one, Abrams, in the House of Correction.

Charges in the indictments were breaking and entering in the nighttime and larceny of $2329.42 from the A. S. Pierce Company store on Huntington avenue, March 5, 1938.

Before adjourning for the day, the grand jury heard testimony from several victims of robberies in which Petzold has said he was implicated.

VICTIMS WITNESSES

Thomas F. Murphy, head of the East Boston insurance office which was robbed after police, acting on a tip, had guarded it for three nights, then removed the guard, told of the circumstances of the robbery.

This was one of the cases in which Petzold named a police officer as having known of the robbery beforehand.

In another such case, Samuel Schwartz, proprietor of a store in Dorchester, a key to which was allegedly found on Petzold, a discovery leading up to the former patrolman's amazing confession, told his story to the jurors.

Victim of another robbery in which Petzold confessed complicity, Julius Kallman, a Brighton rent collector, was another witness during the day's proceedings.

Kallman was held up in Washington street, Brighton, as he was making his collection rounds last March 1.

With the grand jury scheduled to resume its deliberations tomorrow, more indictments were expected to supplant the five voted today.

The grand jury voted the indictments after hearing Petzold's complete story of the robbery, and corroborative testimony as to the comings and goings in the Petzold home in Reading from Mrs. Louis Munroe, Petzold's sister-in-law.

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley led the jurors into Judge Frederick A. Fosdick's court, and after the indictments had been returned, took them back to the grand jury room to resume their deliberations.

The grand jury was next to take up the second part of the case, it was understood, which concerns charges against three police officers of wilfully shutting their eyes to a series of robberies in which Petzold has confessed to having been implicated.

Although neither Foley nor any other court officer will discuss the proceedings, it was understood that the District Attorney plans to ask the grand jury to vote indictments after each section of the case has been probed, as he did today.

Petzold was the first witness before the grand jurors today. While he was testifying, Mrs. Munroe waited her turn, ready, it was believed, to bolster his story with her account of comings and goings in the home she shares with Mrs. Petzold on Van Norden street, Reading.

ONE HURT IN BARRE OUTBREAK

BARRE, Aug. 9—A woman was bruised by rocks and cut by flying glass as violence and vandalism flared again today in the Barre Wool Combing Company strike here.

While plant officials and union representatives conferred in the State House in Boston over union demands for the withdrawal of state troopers from the strike area, pledged by Gov. Saltonstall before the Massachusetts Federation of Labor yesterday as soon as the governor is convinced danger of violence is past, three separate incidents of vandalism increased the strike tension.

THREE YOUTHS HUNTED

Police sought three South Barre youths for questioning, following stoning of the grease recovery plant at the factory. Leo Crowley, working there, was cut and bruised, but told police he had recognized the rock throwers.

As Hans Jacobs of Barre was driving four other workers to the mill, his car was stoned, and Mrs. Beatrice Brightman, 45, was cut and bruised as stones shattered the automobile's windows. The car got through to the plant, however, and Mrs. Brightman was treated at the factory's first aid station.

During the night, vandals smashed the windows and cut the tires on the car of Charles Miknitis of Barre Plains, who, with his wife, works at the mill.

GOVERNOR PRESIDES

The State House conference was presided over by Governor Saltonstall, who reiterated his desire for a speedy settlement of the strike. Following the conference in the Governor's office, the negotiators went to Labor Commissioner James T. Moriarty's office to go on with the negotiations.

Present were Commissioner Moriarty, H. Nelson Flanders, Jr., assistant treasurer of the company; Fritz H. Johneen of the independent union, and a group representing the A. F. of L. local which is on strike, headed by Anthony F. Valente. Eugene M. McSweeney, State commissioner of public safety, and Capt. James P. Mahoney of the State Police also joined in the conversations.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 9 (Canadian Press)—A Kingston Penitentiary prisoner's dare-devil sit-down strike atop a 100-foot smokestack ended before dawn today, but officials refused to explain how or when he came down from his precarious perch.

When daylight broke he was gone. Warden Allen said the prisoner was all right physically, but would give no further information.

A heavy rainstorm which swept Kingston during the night may have brought down the prisoner, who had threatened to jump yesterday if guards came near.

He demanded of the warden that he be transferred back to St. Vincent De Paul Penitentiary, near Montreal, whence he was sent a short time ago to Kingston, known so confined she gazed constantly at two pictures on the wall, the one of Christ and the other of the Virgin Mary.

1000 Pray for Babe With 'Outside Heart'

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 9—A crowd of more than 1000 persons stood outside a small maternity hospital today and prayed for the life of little Maria Corazon Rafael, Filipino baby born three days ago with her heart completely outside her body.

Medical science, however, held no hope the baby could survive, although the mite was apparently normal in every respect save for her exposed heart.

X-ray examination, physicians disclosed, showed it was impossible to replace the infant's heart within the thoracic cavity through surgery.

They said the baby girl might live two weeks, but that death was a certainty because the thoracic cavity was too small to receive the exposed organ.

The baby, developed a slight temperature of less than two degrees today, although doctors said the rise was normal.

The exposed heart, protected by a stemless cocktail glass, rests on the baby's chest and is connected with the body by a large artery.

The 24 year-old Filipino mother of the seven-pound baby, Mrs. Esperanza Rafael, attributes the medical mystery to her worship while bedridden of a picture showing Jesus Christ with his heart exposed.

Mrs. Rafael, a devout Catholic, told interviewers that for three months prior to the birth she was unable to leave bed, and that while

St. Sauveur Orphans Accept Uncle's Aid

Her burden of care and sorrow apparently lightened at last, 17-year-old Mary St. Sauveur, whose youthful slayer-brother, Walter, was recently executed at Satte Prison, talked by telephone today with her newly-found uncle, Dolphus St. Sauveur of Rochester, N. H.

She told her Uncle Dolphus that family records seemed to prove him really her late father's brother, and she said she would gratefully accept his offer to care for her two younger orphaned brothers, Arthur, nine, and John, 14.

UNCLE READY TO AID

Mary made an appointment to meet her uncle in Boston some time later in the week, probably at the office of State Prison Warden Francis J. W. Lanagan, who acted as a philanthropic agent in reuniting New Hampshire and Somerville branches of the St. Sauveur family.

Dolphus St. Sauveur of Rochester, N. H., came to Warden Langan and told him he believed the executed Walter St. Sauveur was his nephew.

And if so, he wanted to do something for Mary, Arthur and John, the New Hampshire man said.

As much surprised as the boys by the materialization of an unsuspected uncle, Mary will use him or any other agnecy calculated to help the young St. Sauveur.

"Walter pleaded with me to see that little Arthur, 9, and John, 14, be brought up in the right atmosphere and 'go straight' and not make the mistake he did," said Mary, with trembling lips.

"I had often read about such warnings, but Walter's request to me was from the heart. He said he wished he could give every boy a warning that crime doesn't pay.

"He talked about Arthur and Johnny every time I went to see him in prison and their future was his dying worry. They are both in institutions as orphans.

WARDEN KIND

"It was in their behalf that I went to State Prison to talk with Warden Lanagan and to get the last letter written by Walter. Warden Lanagan was so kind to Walter and has been so much like a father to me, in all this trouble, that it wasn't hard for me to return to the place where Walter was executed.

"If I had steady work I thought I might try to take my brothers out of the institutions so they might start with the right environment, not that they are not being well cared for where they are but institutions are not like a private home.

"I brought my father's birth and army records and my brothers' birth records to Warden Lanagan when I went to see him.

PARENTS DEAD

"My father John St. Sauveur, died three years ago and my mother died two years ago, both on mother's birthday. Father's honorable discharge from the army shows that he was 36 when he enlisted in the World War and served as chauffeur with the 628th Aero Squadron.

"He was born in St. Guillaume, Can., and the man who says he is our uncle was born in the same place, so I am sure they are brothers.

"I don't care about myself. I can get a job, but since my talks with Walter and his last wish, I can't get little Arthur and John off my mind. Wouldn't it be wonderful if they could be together with our uncle, in the country, where they would grow up clean and strong?"

Lawrence Macy, 21, a member of the 1941 class at Harvard, fell 100 feet to his death while attempting to scale "Sturtzahn," difficult Austrian peak, it was revealed in dispatches from abroad today.

Macy, an experienced mountain climber, was the leader of a party of five, three American and two Viennese students on a mountain expedition in the Alps. He fell in full view of his companions and was dead before they reached him.

JAP REVOLT NEAR OVER AXIS PACT

SHANGHAI, Aug. 9 (AP)—A bitter internal struggle in Japan over whether the empire shall conclude an outright alliance with Germany and Italy which may cause the fall of the Japanese Cabinet was described today by an informed traveler from Tokyo.

This informant, in close touch with government and diplomatic quarters in Tokyo, said the situation there is extremely tense.

Rumors were current that extreme Nationalists had threatened the lives of cabinet members, including Premier Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, who were believed to be opposing the alliance.

Its proponents were described as "young army officers"—majors, lieutenant-colonels, colonels—who demand an outright alliance with the totalitarian powers.

This "open revolt" was expected to compel a showdown from which results even more startling than the fall of the cabinet might come.

The informant said these three events of recent weeks gave the alliance proponents fresh ammunition:

The United States' denunciation July 26 of her trade treaty with Japan.

The apparent success of Britain and France in their negotiations with Russia for a mutual aid pact.

Britain's refusal in the current Tokyo conference to promise definite alteration of her China policy, especially her unwillingness to meet Japan's demands concerning China currency.

Most important of these was said to be the American action, which convinced Japan that no co-operation could be expected from the United States, or from Britain or France, and hence closer ties with Germany and Italy would be better than complete isolation.

The Tokyo cabinet rejected the original proposals for an alliance three months ago. Under recent pressure, however, the government was reported to have agreed to enter an alliance on this one primary condition:

That in case of war Japan would provide her allies with assistance only when and under such circumstances as it appeared to be necessary.

This would in effect have nullified the value of an alliance. It was considered a shrewd political maneuver designed to compel Italy and Germany to assume the responsibility of rejecting Japan's proposals.

JIGGIE 'N' JIGGS

OUT of thousands of suggestions sent in to George McManus, creator of 'Bringing Up Father,' for a name for beloved Jiggs' grandson, 'Jiggie' was chosen as the baby's 'handle.' Miss

JIGGIE, GIVEN NAME OF 'FUNNIES' BABY

Jiggs' baby grandson has a name!

It's "Jiggie"—and it was chosen by George McManus out of thousands of suggestions submitted by helpful readers of "Bringing Up Father," world renowned comic-strip which is a daily feature of the Boston Evening American.

To Miss Margaret Deutsch of Duluth, Minn., goes the distinction of being the first to submit "Jiggie" as the name of the newest member of the Jiggs family.

A legion of followers of the fortunes of the irrepressible Jiggs and his stern helpmate will note that the baby's name combines those of both of his grandparents.

For her contribution to the history of the Jiggs dynasty, Miss Deutsch has been awarded an original drawing, autographed by George McManus, creator of "Bringing Up Father."

In view of his father's title, the newly-christened addition to the Jiggs and Maggie menage will probably appear in Burke's "Peerage" as the Viscount Worthnotten. But to McManus fans he will now and henceforward be simply "Jiggie," a new and mirthful addition to the world's best loved family.

For further acquaintance with "Jiggie," see the "Bringing Up Father" strip today and every day in your Boston Evening American.

Ill Mother Shakes Baby Back to Life

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9 (INS)—Twenty-seven-months old Donald Martin, Jr., was the winner today of a four-hour battle against death from the effects of half a bottle of capsules of a sedative.

His terror-stricken mother, Mrs. Anita Martin, 25, and the efficient work of Dr. Thomas Fitzpatrick and Nurse Helen Howell, at Park Emergency Hospital, saved the baby's life.

After giving the little boy emergency treatment, the doctor warned that the next problem was to keep him alive—or the sedative would paralyze his breathing muscles.

Mrs. Martin, weak and ill herself from a recent influenza attack, helped keep the baby awake by talking to him.

The doctor said if Donald could be kept awake for four hours he would live.

They shook him. They talked to him. They shouted and cried and laughed and jumped him up and down.

When Donald's lungs at last burst forth in a loud baby's wail the doctor smiled. Donald was beginning to do his own fighting against death.

TRAGEDIES IN BRITISH AIR GAMES

LONDON, Aug. 9 (AP)—Britain's big show of air, sea and land power was marred today by aerial casualties—a five-man bomber vanished in the North Sea, four fliers died in a flaming crash and four were forced to "bail out" of a third bombing plane.

A checkup established that a Wellington bomber disappeared at 2:30 a. m. today and was believed to have plunged into the sea east of Yarmouth.

It was near Tollerton, in rural Yorkshire, that the four fliers died in a crash.

The four airmen who took to their parachutes over Thetford were slightly bruised. They had been ordered to jump by a flight sergeant who himself stuck to the controls and landed the bomber with damage only to the undercarriage.

The aerial exercises—a mythical struggle between "Eastland" and "Westland"—were resumed at dawn today with about 1300 of Britain's best warplanes in action. Waves of "raiders," about 500 planes in all, approached a secret target from the east.

Weather conditions which favored the defenders last night turned highly advantageous for the invaders, some of whom found concealment above low clouds.

Previous to these accidents, Royal Air Force planes had been involved in 105 crashes which caused 179 deaths since Jan. 1.

When overhanging clouds persisted into today, the air command ordered a 24-hour postponement of the big blackout covering half of England, including London.

King George Views Fleet of 133 Warships

WEYMOUTH, England, Aug. 9 (AP)—In a heavy mist stabbed by the fire of saluting guns, King George VI today boarded the royal yacht Victoria and Albert for a review of 133 warships—the reserve fleet which Britain is tuning to wartime pitch.

The King spent the morning inspecting the personnel and visiting representative ships. The first warship he boarded was the aircraft carrier Courageous, where he passed down the lines of 1500 men on the flight deck—part of the reservists called up to man the refurbished fleet.

Two U. S. Army Fliers Killed in Air Crash

ROUND LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 9 (AP)—A spectacular collision 2000 feet in the air sent one of two U. S. army observation plane en route to forthcoming war maneuvers plummeting into a clump of trees near here today, killing two aviators.

Army aviation officials identified the victims as 2d Lieut. Morris E. Thomas of Hempstead, L. I., of the army air reserves, and Priv. Anthony E. Gerrity of Scranton, Pa.

Eyewitnesses said the ships were flying in formation when they sideswiped in midair. The ship which figured in the collision was piloted by Lieut. W. M. Prince, commanding the flight.

He landed his disabled plane at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., 10 miles north.

Anti-American Feeling On Increase in China

PEIPING, Aug. 9 (AP)—Broadened activity against Americans in Japanese-controlled areas of China was reported today in fresh dispatches on anti-foreign manifestations.

Chinese dispatches said both Americans and Britons were among foreign missionaries forced to leave Sinyang and Kikungshan, Honan province.

Two Canadian missionaries and four Chinese associates were reported arrested last Sunday at Suchow, Kiangsu province, accused of organizing an anti-Japanese "National Salvation Society" in mission compounds and of furnishing military information to central Chinese government forces.

Anti-American demonstrations were reported at Hwohsien in Shansi province and Shunchiachwang in Hopeh.

Expulsion of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Scoville of Los Angeles from Hwohsien, reported yesterday, was said to have been ordered by a Japanese officer on the ground that Scoville was employed by a British organization and living in a house formerly occupied by a Briton.

Thus, the officer was said to have explained that the American couple might be endangered in view of the anti-British movement which the Japanese have attributed to spontaneous Chinese sentiment.

NAZI SHOT BY POLISH SOLDIER

WARSAW, Aug. 9 (INS)—A German soldier was wounded today in a new skirmish between Nazi and Polish frontier guards near Kamienica, in the Krolevski district.

According to the Polish version of the affair, three German soldiers penetrated one-fifth of a mile into Polish territory. A Polish border guard, Polish sources said, fired a warning shot which was disregarded by the advancing Nazis.

The Polish guard again fired, the second time wounding one German.

The Germans retreated carrying their wounded colleague.

Official Guilty In Parole 'Fix'

In a case which took on added significance in view of the State pardon and paroles investigation, assistant clerk of committees John M. Mansfield, Jr., Somerville, today was found guilty of taking $260 to arrange release of a Concord Reformatory inmate.

On a specific charge of larceny, Mansfield was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Charles F. Gadsby. He appealed and was held in $500 bail for superior court.

The clerk's conviction came after Manuel Mattos, Cambridge, had testified to giving Mansfield money to obtain release of his brother Louis, now an inmate of the Norfolk prison colony.

Mrs. Louis Mattos, Sixth st., Cambridge, and Mrs. Evangeline Mattos, wife and mother, respectively, of the prisoner, each testified to cashing insurance policies to obtain money for Manuel Mattos to give Mansfield.

HITLER SET TO STRIKE, SAYS KNICKERBOCKER

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Aug. 9 (INS)—Test hour is approaching for Europe. Chancellor Hitler's greatest of all crises is advancing rapidly and today it has become probable that his most colossal attempt at conquest by intimidation will take place toward the end of this month or in September.

German mobilization begins this week to reach its peak. It may not mean war this year.

It does mean that the possibility of war will be urged to its utmost limit; that the danger which threatened a year ago at Munich, acute as it was, may seem mild in comparison to the danger now.

It will be a test of nerves and Hitler believes he has the better ones.

1,800,000 IN SERVICE

These are the elements of the game, most gigantic of any played by a head of a state of modern times: Behind Hitler are massing the total of armed forces of the Third Reich.

On the land he has now, according to the estimates of neutral experts, at least 1,800,000 men actually under arms, and by the end of August he will have 2,000,000 or more.

The maximum number expected to be mobilized before actual war is put by competent authority at 2,500,000.

Behind this man-power for the initial shock lie, according to the reports of the most conservative foreign attaches in the Reich, reserves of fuel and food estimated by the German general staff to be sufficient for 12 months of war.

The principal concentration of German troops during the current "maneuvers" is against Poland.

Orders have been issued from Berlin to push to completion the strategic auto-bahnen (motor roads) leading to the Polish frontier by Aug. 14.

CRISIS DRAWS NEAR

To bring the crisis to its climax there now remain for Hitler one task in the military field and two in the diplomatic field. Militarily, the German general staff wishes to complete the encirclement of Poland before going forward with its threat.

This Hitler intends to accomplish through Slovakia. According to his own conditions imposed upon the "autonomous state" of Slovakia, the Germans have the right to send as many troops as they please into Slovakia and to make what military dispositions they like in the country.

But signs have multiplied that Hitler wishes a more thorough solution than that. He would like to persuade Hungary to incorporate Slovakia, and in return obtain from Hungary permission freely to move German troops through Hungary.

So far the Hungarians have opposed, since they are unwilling to accept the doubtful advantage of possessing Slovakia, for the clear disadvantage of entertaining German troops on Hungarian soil, and making Hungary a battlefield in the next war.

SEEKS JAP ALLIANCE

If the crisis runs too rapidly to permit the Reich time to make the Hungarian-Slovak deal, the German army, nevertheless, will be able to use its "treaty rights" to make Slovakia a base against Poland.

This being accomplished, the only tasks remaining to Hitler are diplomatic.

In this field his first task is to continue by every means possible, including his own secret negotiations with Moscow, to sabotage the Anglo-Franco-Soviet attempts to create a triple alliance.

Second is his task of persuading Japan to join the axis. In allied circles the opinion is expressed that it might be better for the allies if Japan did join the axis, since that would incline America more vigorously against the axis, and the peace front would gladly welcome Japan as an enemy if it could get America as a partner.

Development of the crisis, however, need not wait upon the outcome of these diplomatic efforts. For at some moment in the march toward decision, the Hitler tactic, it is now believed, will run as follows:

The Reich will abolish the German customs barrier along the East Prussian frontier with Danzig. Thus Danzig would become automatically a member of a Danzig-German customs union, without the words "customs union" having to be used.

Next, the Danzig Senate will proclaim all Germans living in Danzig to be citizens of the Reich. Thus, if Danzig is not de jure "German," nevertheless, all Danzigers are Reich Germans.

Then Hitler will wait. He has, he believes, better than even chances to get away with that much without war.

The marching at the moment of crisis will have to be done by the Poles. Hitler intends so to arrange the affair that the Polish army will have to appear superficially as the aggressor.

Hitler believes first that the Poles will not march; second, if they do march, that the ease of their aggression will appal so strongly abroad that Britain and France will not support them.

Bonnet Ends His Vacation as New Crisis Looms

PARIS, Aug. 9 (INS)—Because French circles see ominous signs in current European developments, Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet has broken off his vacation and plunged today into a series of conferences with French and foreign diplomats.

JENNEY SOLVENIZED
"Adds a Cylinder to Your Car!"

Jenney Solvenized Gasoline, used regularly, gives you so much more power that you'll feel you have a bigger car, with an added cylinder or two. Here's why—

Jenney Gasoline is Solvenized to dissolve gum and attack carbon on valves and piston rings. As hard carbon is driven out, valves seat more firmly, piston rings seal more tightly and so compression is increased—as much as 50% or more.

Result is that gasoline which used to leak past valves and rings is kept in the cylinders where it belongs, and is used to drive your car. You get the power you pay for—more power, quicker acceleration, and more mileage because you use gasoline formerly wasted.

Jenney Solvenized costs no more. Actually it costs less to use because it carries you farther.

G.O.P. SPEEDS NEW STATE TAX PLAN

from Minority Leader Albert E. Morris (D.) of Everett to eliminate the levy. The resolution was defeated and the cigarette tax of 2 cents a package remained in the omnibus bill, suggested by the ways and means committee after a Republican caucus.

Revised figures were introduced, showing probable return from the cigarette tax of $1,750,000 this year and $7,000,000 next year.

No opposition developed to the proposed increase in inheritance taxes, designed to add $225,000 in new revenues to state funds this year, and $450,000 next.

Nor was there opposition to the surtax plan to levy 15 per cent on all income taxes this year and 17 per cent next year.

This levy, designed to add $6,000,000 to revenues this year, and $4,000,000 next, it will be assessed retroactively on this year's income—is one of the most important of the governor's plan.

Increased taxes on liquor had already been voted, and the bill was sent to the governor for his signature.

RAISE LIQUOR TAXES

This tax designed to increase revenues by $650,000 this year and $2,500,000 next. It increases the tax on hard liquor from 40 cents to 55 cents a gallon, and on sparkling wines from 10 cents to 40 cents.

The tax on still wines, 10 cents a gallon, is unchanged.

There was no proposal made affecting beer, ale or beverages of that type.

A battle was forecast over the proposal to lower exemptions on income taxes from $2000 to $1400. This was to be considered in a separate bill later in the day.

Married men have exemptions now of a basic $2000, $500 for a wife, and $250 for each child. The basic exemption only will be lowered.

Single men have a straight exemption of $2,0?, which will be reduced to $1400.

Pressing their advantage, the Republicans, under a motion by Rep. William A. Jones of Barnstable, sought suspension of the rules for the further reading so that the bill might be passed, engrossed and sent to the Senate.

On a voice vote, Speaker Christian A. Herter stated the rules were suspended, but Rep. John P. White (D.) of Jamaica Plain, rose to a point of order.

"How many votes does it require to suspend the rules?" he inquired.

"Two-thirds," said Herter.

"I doubt the vote," rejoined White, and sat down.

On a standing vote suspension lost, 112 to 90.

While had previously stated that he wished insertion of an amendment to take care of cigarette distributors because of added expense they will incur in collecting the tax.

Rep. Albert E. Morris (D.) of Everett, the minority leader, was the first to find voice.

"We are unalterably opposed to any cigarette tax," he declared. "If you are going to change your vote now, how are you going to explain it to your constituents?"

This last remark was accepted as a dig at Republican legislators who last week defeated the tax.

He was followed by Rep. Morris Kritzman (D.) of Dorchester, who presented a resolution calling for a state lottery to raise funds, a program endorsed, incidentally, yesterday by the annual convention of the State Federation of Labor.

"I feel that we should not be bludgeoned into passing this tax proposal offered by the Governor," he shouted. "I, for one, refuse to go along on any tax program with His Excellency."

Speaker Christian A. Herter ruled the resolution was out of order, and that any matter to be considered must come within the scope of the governor's special tax message.

Rep. Albert F. Bigelow, Rep. Brookline, chairman of the ways and means committee, then took the floor in behalf of the measure, promising a deficit of but $8,000,000 if the program is passed as opposed to a deficit of $30,000,000, now faced by the state treasury.

"This program will reduce the tax rate this year by $1.90 per thousand, and next year by $2.25 per thousand," he said.

The Governor also has a proposal for increased gasoline taxes, and insists on an additional $450,000 in revenue from dog tracks.

Under the present system, under which the state is entitled to 3½ per cent of the 15 per cent "taken off the top" of dog track wagers, the revenue last year was $750,000.

A compromise plan provides for the State to take 4 per cent of the first $75,000 of the dog track handle, or 5⅓ per cent of the entire handle if the amount exceeds $75,000.

The taxation committee again wrangled with the problem for more than an hour today.

In the meantime, a proposal is before the Senate to allow dog tracks to operate between August 15 and September 30, it having already passed the House.

That period is now barred to track operations because of county affairs held throughout the Commonwealth.

"BETRAYED" — Betty Butler, filmster, today testified in Los Angeles court that Al Rogell, screen director, promised to marry her, but instead, wed Irma Waner. She seeks $125,000 balm.

Probe Beating Of U. S. Agents

The federal grand jury today began a probe of a fight in a South End cafe where three federal officers were severely beaten the night of July 14 when they entered to serve execution of a government order.

Assistant United States Attorney William T. McCarthy, who at the time described the attack as a "vicious fight on the federal government," entered the grand jury room with two men he described as "mystery witnesses."

Deputy United States Marshals Paul Skusse and Patrick Shames, and Officer Jack Watson, were ill injured in the cafe.

Walter Hyatt, waiter, and Daniel Gallanc, cashier, were held in $500 bonds each after the fight when they were arraigned on charges of felonious assault.

Truth Finder Probes Plane Plant Sabotage

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (INS)—Suspicions of sabotage at the airplane motor plant of Wright Aeronautical Corp. at Paterson, N. J., where many of America's army and navy motors are built are being intensively investigated, the New York Journal and American reported today.

A wave of mysterious "accidents" at the factory and numerous petty thefts ceased suddenly after Roy Post, a criminologist, was retained by the company to test the 5000 Wright employes with his "truth finder," the newspaper reported.

Following publication of the story, Vice-President M. B. Gordon of the Wright concern denied that sabotage was involved and said that Post was retained solely for the purpose of putting a stop to petty thievery.

"There has been carelessness in the plant and a great deal of petty thievery," the Journal and American quoted Charles King, treasurer of the corporation. "We don't know yet whether this was part of a plot to sabotage the plant and we are not prepared to say that it was but of course there is always that possibility."

Typical of the suspicious incidents was one that occurred recently when a crated motor was picked up by a crane, the newspaper reported. The crate had been so insecurely constructed that it pulled apart, dropping the motor to the stone floor, according to the newspaper.

YOUR DRINK COMES OUT OF THE NEAREST BOTTLE—

When You Fail to Name Your Brand

At every bar are liquors you know and respect, as well as other liquors that you don't know very much about. And the chances are that your drink comes out of the nearest bottle—the bottle you don't know very much about . . . unless you're sure to name your brand. And you ought to be sure—for although the liquor your bartender serves you may cost as much as your favorite brand, it is not the kind that you know will please you. So be as discriminating as when you order liquor by the bottle! Remember, a widely advertised brand has a valuable reputation to protect. Be especially particular when ordering mixed drinks! Specify your brand. It costs no more and your bartender will respect you for knowing good liquor.

"Meanwhile Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is interested in maintaining low prices for farmers, so as to create a demand for agricultural benefits to be disbursed by him. They play all day at being what they aren't and by the time evening comes they have had more than their fill of make believe.

"When they go in for relaxation and entertainment on their own they have the natural reaction to want to be themselves and slip back to the normal stride, without phantasy or frazings."

There has been a lot said and written about the way they dress, she explained. "Of how they go to parties in sport outfits, tweeds or business suits. It is generally quite an occasion that will make a film person don a tuxedo and as for white ties and tails they are rarely seen."

On the other hand people in other walks of life welcome the rare opportunities they get to "dress up."

"It is because Hollywood film players want a contrast to their fantastic workaday life," Elsa said, "that they are America's most conservative people in their private lives."

After finishing her role in her first motion picture, Cosmopolitan's Hotel For Women at Twentieth Century Fox, Miss Maxwell is delivering a series of lectures throughout the United States.

So well was her work considered in her movie debut that Darryl F. Zanuck has signed her for another production to be titled "Public Deb No. 1."

A CHIEF SUFFERER under the New Deal's "free trade" treaty with Canada is New England's important fishing industry.

While thousands of men in Gloucester and other maritime communities are either unemployed or "on relief," Canadian fishermen are enjoying new and unprecedented prosperity.

During the past four years they have exported to the United States more than five times as many fish fillets as they ever exported before.

And 1939 fish imports from Halifax and other Nova Scotia ports will be nearly double last year's volume, despite an increase of 50% per cent between 1934 and 1938.

But the fishing industry is not the lone victim. Allied industries cannot escape the depression resulting from this unfair and ruthless competition.

Farmers who sell the fishing industry more than $2,000,000 worth of their products each year, the petroleum industry which supplies 50,000,000 gallons of fuel oil to keep boats in operation, and shipyard workers who receive more than $2,000,000 in wages are greatly concerned.

Little wonder millions of persons are finding it difficult to reconcile the destruction of the New England fishing industry with President Roosevelt's statement of October 1932, when he said:

"It is unreasonable and unsound in principle to bring into the American market through reciprocal trade agreements that which we have or that which we are prepared and ready and anxious to supply."

"BUREAUCRACY is increasing by leaps and bounds in America," says Senator H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, who quotes Gouverneur Morris' famous statement that:

"The mind of man is fond of power; increase his prospects and you enlarge his desires."

Undoubtedly, the Senator knows that in the first 143 years of this nation's existence only nine agencies of centralized political control were created.

But in the past seven years between 1932 and 1939, FORTY-NINE bureaucratic bodies with executive powers came into being.

Reeds in the Wind

WITH storm birds scolling overhead . . . as skies grow leaden and dark and gray . . . as by the winds they're buffeted . . . the great tall reeds will bow and sway.

But when the storm has onward passed . . . when Boreas has curse his last . . . they raise their dainty heads at last . . . to greet the morning sun.

By life's storms we too are tested . . . but those survive who in their hearts . . . as human as it seems to have failed . . . can bow reeds in the wind, unbowed knowing that storms [illegible] which brings back Summer's [illegible].

Human Side of News —t—

By EDWIN C. HILL

THERE IS MUCH of the [illegible] of the play, "The Late [illegible] by Bellamy Partridge, just published by Whittlesey House.

I dare say that more than half of the middle aged ladies and old gents of America came from small towns or "communities and [illegible] pageant is unfolded and [illegible] by this faithful portrayal of a vanished tree-bordered Main street.

The country doctor and the horse and buggy have been much in evidence on the literary highways in the last few years. The [illegible] has been [illegible].

Mr. Partridge's book [illegible] time story of his father, Samuel Selden Partridge, for nearly 50 years a lawyer in the village of Phelps, in western New York. It has the same evocation of homely early American virtues and the same afterglow of the pastoral idyll as flavor the various books about or by the sage old family doctor.

IT IS A REMINDER, to this reader at least, that the conscientious old time lawyer, like the doctor of the same period, was not greedy for money. They sought to keep their clients or patients out of litigation or illness, although these calamities made their [illegible] and [illegible] than it appeared later in the big towns. You [illegible] didn't get away with much if you lived [illegible] under the daily scrutiny of people who had known you from infancy.

professions and their livelihood.

There are quack doctors and there are shyster lawyers. But those of us fortunate enough to treasure fragrant memories of a little home town will every one of us, cite some shrewd and kindly old codger who was always thwarting evildoers and keeping good people out of trouble.

In villages, particularly, those of our untroubled decades before the turn of the century, the distinction between good and evil was more sharply delineated in

SO IT IS with Mr. Partridge's book, and it seems to me that such delineation accounts for much of the sharp dramatic quality of these increasingly popular books of American retrospects. You have a feeling that the American way was right and that the "old-fashioned" Americans drew sharp distinction between right and wrong.

With them indeed, right was right, wrong was wrong. But there is no overlay of piety in Mr. Partridge's book. He is "not righteous over much." He has a loose and easy writing wrist and lets [illegible] simply and admirably tell with chuckling humor and a minimum of sentimentalizing about the good old days—none at all, in fact. To keep the record straight:

I like a factual story as engrossing as fiction, as one follows the [illegible] of the elder Partridge's business and fortunes the birth of [illegible] children and his peace and solvency in a 15-room house [illegible] the General Grant period are [illegible].

[illegible] Syndicate, Inc.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt —t— —t— MY DAY

HYDE PARK, Aug. 9.—I am reminded daily of the statements which I heard when WPA was cut off by Congress last spring: "If people have to [illegible] will find jobs." "It will be cheaper to support people on straight relief than on WPA." "We [illegible] to be practical and [illegible] about the unemployed." [illegible] was [illegible] if it feels that Congress is [illegible] if it gets some laws they want.

Well, I wish the Congressmen who enacted the bill which is now being put into effect would answer some of the questions which come to me. Perhaps, you, in your various communities will get them to do so, now that they are at home.

A WOMAN writes me: "I have a family of six. Our WPA pay has been $42.50 a month. We haven't saved anything on that, could you? Now, it is coming time to get the children ready for school and there is a new rule as to the hours we work a month and then we lay off 30 days. How do we live, Mrs. Roosevelt, and how can we get clothes so as to send the children to school?

Here is another statement: "Many men laid off have only one or two days coming to them, not two weeks as so often stated, and they wait for that. Their regular pay checks are never large enough to cover all their living expenses. They cannot apply for home relief for 30 days and it may be four to six weeks before they get any help.

"As I write, another 'pink slip' has just come for a youngster who supports his invalid mother and his sister on less than $17 a week and who yesterday, a week before pay day, had to borrow money to come to work. A finer worker I have never known, unusually bright, energetic and dependable; indispensable to the work he has been doing.

"How can the men who have enacted this legislation go home and face their wives and children, when they have decreed starvation for other men's wives and children?

"They have said they were legislating against Communistic activities in WPA. Such crass stupidity is beyond belief. They have made ten potential Communists for every one such now existing and have, incidentally, increased by great numbers the members of the 'radical' organizations they dislike."

"I am a veteran of the last war, my father, his father, and his father before him fought in the wars and I think that I am a loyal and true American, yet I am not sure that I wouldn't rather have a full stomach and shelter under some other regime than to be hungry and homeless under the present one."

THIS ISN'T an academic discussion, this is actually what happens to human beings. Mr. Legislators, what are your answers?

VITAMIN A HELPS BODY RESISTANCE

I am 38 years of age, in good health at present, but I want something to keep me fit to resist colds. What do you recommend?

Mrs. H. H.

To keep the membranes which line our breathing tract in a healthy condition, we must give these tissues a daily supply of vitamin A; for when these tissues are in a healthy condition, they are better able to prevent penetration by disease germs. That is the reason for urging the use of vitamin A preparations to keep the respiratory tract resistant to infection.

Manners

Curb the Child

By MRS. HECKMAN

Have understanding hearts, you mothers and fathers who are planning to travel by train with your children.

Those active minds and hands are never more active than when they are traveling on a train. New adventures, new surroundings, new people, new social adjustments, new standards of good behavior ...

... these small ... to sit quiet ... be good" and to "look out of the window" for hours at a time. Naturally they want something to occupy their minds and their hands, something to entertain them. If you prepare for this very human need, you will make them happy, make yourself happy, and make your fellow passengers comfortable.

For the child old enough to read an entertaining new book will absorb his or her attention. A book or magazine of "funnies" is an excellent recipe for a contented road trip.

... especially wise mother or father plans a surprise, to be pulled ... when ... begin to ... when ... legs ... to nag. Busy ... An intriguing new toy, an exciting game, an engrossing puzzle. Or ... for a little girl something new to sew or crochet for her Doll's ward ...

... to abide by adult train behavior. Just on the other hand, as ... passengers as we ... their ... by ... mothers and fathers.

Some adults' idea of entertaining children on trains is to allow them to eat continuously. Why worry, their smug manner implies, if the child drips the juice of oranges on the seats of coats?

Or if the cute little darling puts smeared fingers on the dress or coat of a passenger ...

Well, why not worry a bit about ... passengers?

If you do your job of thoughtful planning of entertainment and decent control of your children's manners, you'll prove that your children's manners "began at home" and charmingly went a-traveling with them.

Big League Prophets Still Take Pasting From Nats, Chisox

[illegible] A. [illegible] Associated Press [illegible] Baseball [illegible] Mc[illegible] [illegible] Batting [illegible] American League [illegible]

A wise man that fellow Bill Cunningham is, for if his hens were selling things to go on if his hens were selling. These big league clubs just won't "sell" for Mr. Gus these days.

At the moment, all his extra specials are out after "dope" on (1) the Washington Senators and (3) the Chicago White Sox as it is about to go under for the count of 1 time.

The Reds and Yankees were supposed to [illegible] At this writing the Reds have licked off the top spots but they say the least they both look [illegible]

NATS RIDING HIGH

The Senators were supposed to be extremely lucky like hitting bingo if they finished any distance out of the cellar, despite the friendly presence of the Athletics and Browns in the American League.

Yet right now they're riding along on an eight game winning streak, the latest a 7-6 decision over the Yanks, which cut the champions' league lead to a mere 7½ games.

The Reds were supposed to be the only outfit in the National League with enough class to get the rating as a big league club. Yet, Will McKechnie's men barely managed to split a double header with the Cubs yesterday and can boast, if they want to, about a total of just three victories in their last eight starts, which has shaved their lead to 7½ games.

SOX LAUGH AT PROPHETS

The White Sox probably have [illegible] Mr. Expert more than any of them. They're still way up there in third place. And, on paper, Jimmy Dykes' lads belong in that rarefied atmosphere about as much as the ladies' weekly sewing circle.

Yet, with the 5-3 win over the Tigers that they pulled out of the hat yesterday, they now are no worse than even with every club in the league except the Yankees on the season's play.

Craft's Condition Reported Unchanged

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (AP)—The condition of Harry Craft, Cincinnati centerfielder injured in yesterday's first game of a double header with the Cubs, was reported unchanged today by Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs' physician.

X-ray pictures revealed no fractures but Craft is suffering from a slight concussion and an injured neck received when he crashed into Lee Gamble, left fielder, in the third inning.

Jack Johnson Tale Makes Hit With Court

Nova Here To Train For Galento

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP)—The [illegible] stirring again today w[illegible] start training for his Sept. 7 [illegible] with Tony in Philadelphia.

Nova is pitching his camp at Atlantic City, and will stay [illegible] there until the day he climbs into the ring with [illegible].

Tony, long a favorite with Philly fans, plans to train for a spell at Mahmie Bey's in his own N. J. hideaway and then move into Philadelphia to polish up his footwork for about a week.

Both Nova and his manager, Ray Carlen, are convinced they will stop Galento before the fourth round, thus beating Louis' record in this [illegible].

The Mt. Hope Club of Roslindale, winner of the first half of the Western League, will play the Nyma Club at Fenway Park at the finals of the League Club at Hurley Field, Rosl[illegible].

The Mt. Hope [illegible] will probably use Finnel with his brother Jack [illegible] for Nyma is undecided as to who they will pitch, Glynn or Gately. Tagerman will be the probable receiver.

Spa Sales Average $1143

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 9 (AP)—Yearling prices apparently will continue their upward swing this year if the results of the opening session of the 1939 Saratoga sales are any criterion.

With all the prominent buyers of other years on hand, the opening sale last night saw 44 head disposed of for $50,300, or an average of $1143. This compared favorably with the final average of last year's sales.

Samuel D. Riddle, owner of the Glen Riddle Farms, bought in five yearlings for $17,200 and paid top price of the evening, $2000, for a bay colt by Imp. Challenger 2nd out of Mohaut by Pennant.

40,000 JAM GOSHEN TO SEE $40,000 TROT

WITH BILLY DIRECT, world's champion pacer, and Greyhound, world's champion trotter, at Goshen, N. Y., today, there is talk about a special match race between these kings of harness horse racing . . . Billy Direct has a mark of 1:55 flat for a mile, while the brilliant Greyhound has done the mile in 1:55 1-5.

Despite all the talk . . . the harness horse men . . . is unlikely that Billy Direct and Greyhound will ever meet in a test of speed . . . Such races have proved unsatisfactory . . . and the leaders in the harness horse game . . . not going to do anything to injure their sport.

Goshen will take on new excitement today with the running of the famous Hambletonian . . . A crowd of 40,000 persons will be on hand to witness the classic . . . There will not be a New England entry today . . . Two years ago DeSota, carrying Paul Bassett's colors, was a favorite to win the Hambletonian and finished second.

DeSota has since been sold to the same Italian syndicate that bought Tara, champion trotter of a few years ago.

Walter Cox, brother of Justice Louis Cox of the Supreme Judicial Court, will be among those along the rail at Goshen today . . . Walter was one of the world's foremost drivers . . . and now owns and trains harness horses.

Fortunes are spent for the standard bred horses that compete at Grand Circuit meetings. Most of the owners are wealthy men who go in for harness horses as a hobby . . . The big stables have well organized crews to care for the expensive horse flesh, and the finest possible equipment. Allan Wilson of Newton and Bruce Wetmore of Jamaica Plain, who now enjoy racing best when seated in clubhouse boxes used to be leading drivers.

Wilson and Wetmore each owned numerous fine trotters and pacers . . . The thrill of driving their own horses in a race has caused many rich men to go in for harness horse racing . . . In Grand Circuit clashes, professional drivers are usually used . . . The amateur driver hasn't got much of a chance of winning in Grand Circuit competition.

CONNORS SPEEDS FIGHT TO PROTECT $2 BETTOR

By JACK CONWAY

The $2 bettor should receive as much protection under any payoff system at the Massachusetts pari-mutuel tracks as the $10 or the $100 bettor, according to a statement made today by Charles F. Connor, chairman of the Massachusetts Racing Commission.

The Racing Commission is awaiting an interpretation by the office of the Attorney-General on the recent Supreme Court decision on the matter of breakage.

"In 1938," said Chairman Connors, "there were 16,940,025 wagers made at $2 against 1,402,255 at $5, 600,174 at $10 and 11,375 at $100.

INTERPRETATION SOUGHT

"It is my desire to make certain that the $2 bettor receives equal protection with $100 bettor.

"This is one of the reasons the Racing Commission referred the recent Supreme Court decision to the attorney general's office for interpretation. One clause in that decision reads:

"'The computations of the parties as shown by the record disclosed that each winning patron is entitled to share in the winnings of a horse upon which he has placed a wager in proportion that his wager bears to the total amount wagered on the horse.'

"We are anxious to get an interpretation of that particular clause.

ALL PAY OFF ON $1

"Massachusetts race tracks have been made successful by the $2 bettor, and the Commission feels he is entitled to the same consideration that is accorded to the $10 and the $100 bettor in the matter of payoffs.

"Under our present system of paying off on $1, there would be a return of $2.60 under certain conditions, while under the proposed change the payoff would be $2.70.

"Carrying the betting into the $10 brackets, the payoff would be $13.90. Five $2 tickets on the same race would return only $13.50 which would be a matter of 40 cents against the $2 bettor.

"On a $100 ticket there would be a payoff of $68.00, while, if 50 $2 tickets were cashed, the total amount returned to the bettors would be only $67.50.

"My claim is that the $2 bettors would have a right to contend they could pool their tickets so as to get the higher payoff."

Commissioner Connors said that all states payoff on $1 and that an emergency measure now before the legislature could correct the situation.

"If we are obliged to have different payoffs under the present law," said Chairman Connors, "the operation of the tracks will be slowed down, and it would be necessary to reduce the number of races. This would mean less revenue for the state.

"The loss of breakage would also take away from the state as much money as is hoped to gain from an increased mutuel take at the dog tracks."

MORE DATES POSSIBLE

In the event the period from August 15 through September 30 is opened for racing under an act now before the Legislature, Chairman Connors declared the racing commission under the present law could grant ten additional days to both Revere and to Dighton, but that there would have to be public hearings if any more days were sought.

The racing commission will await action on the breakage rule until it gets an interpretation of the court's ruling from the attorney-general's office.

Medford Qualifies For N. E. Sectionals

Undisputed champion of Massachusetts, the Medford Junior Legion baseball team today was ready to battle other State winners in next week's New England sectionals at Manchester, N. H.

Medford won the State title at Dickinson stadium by taking the rubber game of the series from the Brockton Post team, 8-1, behind the two-hit pitching of Carlo Patturelli.

3 PARK GAMES TONIGHT

Feature attraction of three after-supper encounters carded for tonight in the Boston Park League will be the joust at South Boston Stadium between the East division-al first placeholding Roslindale Town Club and the St. Augustine Club, second place occupants.

Bill Benson's Saints pulled out of a second place tie with St. Alphonsus last night when they won over Star of the Sea at East Boston and in an effort to remain undisputed tenant of the spot, Bill will send Walsh to the rubber to stymie the Townies.

Caseys home game at Neponset has been brought forward to tonight at Garvey Field instead of Thursday and the attraction at Dorchester will be the St. Catherines Club of Charlestown, the Saints were edged 4-2 last night by Roslindale and tonight Joe McCarthy may send Mortimer after the Casey crew.

Windup game will be at Barry Field in Charlestown where the Navy Yard A. A. will be at home to Ray Coolidge's South Boston Town team and since the Navy is back in a third-place tie in the West with Holy Name, the shipbuilders will drag out their heavy pitching gun, Curt Fullerton, to repel the City Pointers.

2 British Girls Win, 3rd Defaults at Rye

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 9 (AP)—Kay Stammers, England's No. 1 woman tennis player, led the advance into the quarter-final round of the women's Eastern grass court championships today when she defeated Patricia Canning of Alameda, Cal., 7—5, 6—3.

Another member of the British Wightman Cup team, Mrs. Freda Jame: Hamr.ersley, went into the brackets of eight by eliminating the sensational young Helen Bernhard of New York, seeded fifth on the domestic list, 6—4, 6—3.

The third and fourth American seeded entries, Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., and Dorothy Workman of Los Angeles, also annexed quarter-final berths.

Miss Bundy scored over Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, 6—4, 11—9, while Miss Workman had an easier time with Edna Steinbach of Richmond Hill, N. Y., 6—1, 6—1.

Mary Hardwick became the second Wightman Cup player to drop out of the contention when she defaulted in the midst of a heated struggle with Mary Arnold of Los Angeles.

The scores were 6—4, 6—6. Miss Hardwick complained of the humidity and said she "felt funny inside."

The first tandem to enter the quarter-final round of doubles was Dorothy Andrus, Stamford, Ct., and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, France, who triumphed over Louise Raymond, Scarsdale, N. Y., and Patricial Cumming of Westfield, N. J., 6—4, 6—3.

Two men's doubles teams were delayed entries into the second round.

Gil Hunt of Washington, D. C., and Ernest Sutter of New Orleans, defeated Bob Curtis of Houston and Ronald Edwards of Berkeley, Cal., 7—5, 8—10, 6—4, and Charles E. Hare of England and Ladislav Hecht of Czechoslovakia downed Bradley and Alastair Martin of New York, 6—3, 6—3.

Mike Kaplan Gives Vet Boxer Lesson

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP)—Mike Kaplan, Boston, scored enough points to win the decision over New York's veteran Leon Del Genio, in the eight-round feature event of a boxing show.

Kaplan used a sharp left and staggered Del Genio often but could not floor him. Del Genio's spirited bid near the end came too late to turn the tide.

"MEMBER WHEN SHIRES DROPPED YOU?" Earl Mack, right, jibes with Lena Blackburne, A's coach, about wild and wooly days when Blackburne managed White Sox and Art (Showboat) Shires was fist slinging first baseman. Shires did peg Lena, 'member? But Lena's doing all right today, and where is the verbose Mr. Shires?

TITLE TANK RACES ON AT MARBLEHEAD

The swimming carnival at the Corinthian Yacht Club, Marblehead, a feature of race week, will be held tonight in the Club's beautiful outdoor pool. Topping the list of events is the N. E. junior 150 meters medley championship for women with the Massachusetts State 220 yards breast stroke title for the mermen.

In addition there are four invitation events 100 meters free style, 100 meters breast stroke both for the maids and 100 meters free style and 100 meters back stroke.

The 12-year-old Norma Ewart, N. E. junior 440-yard champion, will try to annex the 150 junior medley title. Other leaders in the field are Elinor Kyle, former junior back stroke queen of the Boston Swimming Association, Agnes Walkama and Marion Leary, both of the WSA of Brookline.

In the Massachusetts State 220 yards breast stroke, Robert Lesieur of the Boston Y, Ted Dzkiewicz and Tom McGrath, N. E. senior back stroke champion, both of the Worcester Boys' Club and Bob Manson of the Boston Swimming Association loom as the contenders.

In the invitation races for the women Edna Soltysiak and Ruth Howarth both joint holders of the national junior 150 yards medley head the list in 100 meters breast stroke and should provide a threat on the record.

Miss Soltysiak is also in the 100 free and is favored to win over Peggy Graham of Whitinsville and Mary Hartnett and Patience Hosmer of the Boston Swimming Association, present 50 and former 100 meters champion respectively.

Witold Babula, Olneyville Boys' Club and N. E. senior 100 meters freestyle champion should lead the field in the 100 meters free with Matt Soltysiak, a teammate, and Francis Degan and Esmond Crowley of the Boston Swimming Association among the threats.

Tom McGrath should win easily in the other invitation race, the 100 back with George Gibbons, N. E. senior 300 meters medley and 220, and 800 freestyle king pressing the champ very close. Magner Goode and Charlie Zaikowski will battle it out for the third place.

There will also be a water ballet given by members of the Boston Swimming Association and fancy and comedy diving under the direction of Paul Snyder, former N. E. champion.
